MIDDLESEX ELECTION.

This day at ten o'clock the freeholders of Middlefex mer at Brentford for the purpose of electing two members to represent that county in Parliament. Mr Wilkes, Mr Byug, and Mr Mainwaring were nominated by their respective friends; and as a poll was vehemently demanded on all hands, the Sheriffs complied with the wifes of the meeting, and proceeded to basinets immediately, without any address from either of the candidates. Mr Mainwaring and Mr Bying appeared to be noth in favour of the people. After the poll had continued fome time, Mr Sheriff Skinner made a proposal, which was adopted by his colleague, of requesting the candidates to confust with their friends, and determine whether the poll should finally conclude this day, or be renewed to-morrow, as no fult with their friends, and determine whether the poll fhould smally conclude this day, or be renewed to-morrow, as no time was particularly specified by usage for the conclusion of the poll, and it might be midnight before the electors relinquished their attendance. The candidates upon this, retired to deliberate upon, what measure they should pursue, and after some consultation, it was unaninously agreed upon by them and their friends, that no opinion could be formed till they knew the strongth of each party at that period of the poll.—The Under Sheriff at sour o'clock, proceeded to an examination of the books, and the numbers appeared as follow:

It is supposed that Mr Mainwaring is seene, and that Mr Byng, on the final result, will prove the other successful candidate.

Mr Archibald nar, one of the ministers of Glasgow, the former Moderator, who preached a fermon very suitable to the occasion, from Matth. z. 24, 25. The Rev. Mr. Alexander Moodie, minither of Riccarton, was chosen Moderator. The meeting of Synod was very thin, few of the distant members being up, and a greater number of elders that ministers attended. The first cause which came before the Synod was a protest and appeal by James Prentice, elder in Cambusnethan, against a fentence of the Presbytery of Hamilton, by which they confirmed Mr Stewart of Allanton's ordination to the office of an elder. The Synod, after having heard James Prentice's reasons of differst and appeal, and the Presbytery of Hamilton's an Iwers in support of their fentence, and having fully deliberated upon the merits of the caufe, difinified the appeal, and affirmed the fentence of the Prefbytery fulfaining Mr Stewart's ordi-

The Synod next took under their confideration a reference from the Prelibytery of Ayr, with relation to a motion made by one of its members, and seconded by another, to the following effects. That an overture should be presented to the next. General Assembly, for an application to our gracions King and Patliament, that they may be pleased to grant some relief as to the grievance occasioned by the rigorous exercise of the law of patronage; particularly, that the act of Queen Ann, 1712, be rescanded, and that of King William, 1600, be restored, with such explanations and amendments as may seem proper. In the course of the debate, which took place upon this subject, sour several motions were made and seconded.

The 1st, In support of the motion contained in the reference from the Pathytery of Ayr above mentioned, 2dly, That the Synod shall present an overture to the Astembly, to the following effect: That, whereas the law of patronage is now actually in some made in the Church, as it has been for upwards of synod next took under their confideration a reference 70 years last past, without being attended with any inconvenience to those passines, which have somitted peaceably to it; and whereas unwarrentable and unusual endeavours; have, of late, been used by divers members of tins church, to inflame the minds of the common people against it i therefore, that venerable Assembly would be pleased to take such measures to their wildom should feem meet, for repressing the faid diforders, and seconciling the people so the aforefaid law of patroniage as in at prefent flands, at least, until a better law to superly its place be framed and agreed to by its opportunity and the lame be got and established in a legal and constitutional manner.

3 dly, That whereas the law of patronage has always been confidered by the Prefbyterian chusch as a very great grievance; and, as the people of Scotland, at prefent, are more than ordinarily auxious to have that law either altogeth a abrogated, or at least fo mitigated, as to prevent violent fe trements in vacant parithes, and feparations from the established church: Therefore, it is humbly overtured to the venerable.
Affembly, that the moderation of a call (which, in the prefere mode, is a mere farce, or rather an infult offered to those whom the law appoints to be the callers) shall, in all time-coming, whom the law appoints so be the callers) shall, in all time-comings be considered as meaning a majority of the callers; that is, a majority of Heritors, Elders, and Heads of Families, without which no presentation shall be valid. Whetefore, if the person whom the patron shall present has a majority of Heritors, Elders, and Heads of Families, subscribing his call, collision shall be given by the Presyery. But, if the presence has not a majority of the aforesaid callers on his side, the presentation shall have no force, and the patron shall be obliged to present u 2d, 3d, and ash time, unless some of the present have got a majority of the aforesalers subscription on the day of the moderation: It being understood that, with every new presentee, those who were formerly presented but rejected new prefentee, those who were formerly presented but rejected for want of a majority of the callers subscribing to him or then shall always continue in the leet of subscription, in case the callers subscription, lers come to think better of them than they did when their c. If was first moderated in. And that the paron may have it is his power to present foat times, if necessary, within the fix months from the date of the vacancy; the Prefbytery, within whose bounds the vacant parish lies, shall be obliged to appoint a quo unt of their number to attend at every moderation of a call, that they may, at that very meeting, receive and judge of the call according to an exact lift of the numbers of Freritors, Elders, and Heads of Families given in to them, and from by the Seffion-Clerk, or by fome other respectable man in faid vacant parish, to be named by the Presbytery when the preserfation is first given in to them. And if none of the four pre-fentees offered by the patron during the said fix months, shall be called by the said majority of Heritors, Elders, and Heads of Families, then it shall be competent for him (the patron) at nout any longer indulgence or restriction, to name any one of his four former presentees whom he had crude, as the per-sent who shall be ordained by the Presbytery to be Minister of the recant parish. And the law, so far as respects the just dedam, to remain as it is."

The 4th motion proposed, that all the three motions above-mentioned should be transmitted by the Synod to the Assembly, with this judgment, which was thought expedient for uniting the views and inclinations of all the members, "That they are all highly worthy of the ferious confideration of the Affembly, and deferve to be transmitted to all the prefbyteries wishing this church, that the sense of the whole church may be known with respect to them all, and regular reports may be made by the different presbyteries to the General Assembly before any application is made to government upon the subject of patronage." The vote was then put, which of all these four motions should be adupted; when it carried the first by a great

Another question was then moved, Whether the whole of the above motion should be adopted as the ground of an overture to be presented to the General Assembly, or only such a part of it, as, in general, recommended an application to be made to government for relief from the tigorous exercise of the law of paironage, without specifying any patticular way in which take relief was to be and it down cornect for the whole of it. Against this sentence several ministers you rested, and appealed to the General Assembly.

The next cause which came before the Synod, was a que-ftion referred to them by the Presbytery of Ayr, " Whether a minister and his colleague, being an ordained athisant and fac-cessor, can both it and vote as constituent members of Prefbytery, and whether faid affiliant can have any right at all to lit and vote in the character of a minister, as a member of Preflytery or church court." The Synod unanimously agreed to rethis question to the advice and decision of the next General Affembly

There should also have come before the Synod a protest and There is an in have come before the synon a protest and complaint by two members of the Preflytery of Ayr, against a sentence of that Presbytery, of date the gift of March ult. relating to a printed letter, addressed to chiefs, under the printed fignature of John Gilliss; but it being observed by she Synod, that there was not a quorum from the other Preflyreries; (the Preflyrery of Aur being excluded to judge in this cause) they agreed that this affair should be over to next Synod.

The Synod broke up late on Wednelday right, and appoint ed their next meeting to be held at Glagow on the found.
